“ Hey Ma,

*It's been a week since you were called back home,
but it's still so hard to believe you're gone.
No more calls to hear how your day has went,
no more talks of how your money was spent.
No more fishing trips and burning up the trees by the lake,
no more apologies for what you thought were mistakes.
No more jokes about our favorite Fred Sanford episodes, no more "Lil Red Wheelbarrow" rippin and runnin on the Columbia roads.
No more pig feet and sauerkraut or ox tails and rice,
or my favorite fried chicken that you always prepared so nice.
No more hugs from Sugarmama for Kendall, Antoine and "Squirt", no more immaculate housekeeping trying to get every little speck of dirt.
No more late nights on the computer playing Yahoo spades, then telling me "I can't sleep" because of that choice that you made.
No more elevator rides to the 19th floor,
no more 1 bedroom views of 5 Points and more.
For your penthouse is now a mansion in which you now you have many rooms and space,
I love you and till that day when we meet again, and see you face to face.*

*Love,
The Ellis Family*

I loved this lady. She was a good neighbor, she was like a sister and there was nothing if you ever needed anything, that she would not do to see that you get it. Love you Linda. I remember the laughs, the joy, the good time we had. I am going to miss you dearly. Just save a seat for me.
